

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A laser measuring device includes a housing, a laser head, two levels, a power supply, and a control knob. Thus, the housing has a non-symmetrical structure, so that when one of the casings of the housing is removed, the 5 adjusting screws of the laser head are entirely exposed outward from the housing, thereby facilitating adjustment of the laser head and the levels.